Linz, March 1, 2013 – Mindbreeze, a Fabasoft subsidiary and a leading provider of software for enterprise search and digital cognition, is again listed among KMWorld's 100 companies that matter in knowledge management. KMWorld is the leading information provider serving the knowledge, document and content management systems market.

"We are very honored to achieve this listing once again. It shows our continued focus on providing cutting-edge solutions that help shape the search market and on serving the needs of our customers as best possible. Mindbreeze InSite's innovative module kit principle not only harnesses high-end search functionality but makes customized search applications uniquely accessible and easy to implement", says Daniel Fallmann, Founder and Managing Director of Mindbreeze.

Mindbreeze InSite's module kit enables the easy creation of tailor-made search services for websites and portals. The module kit can be used intuitively via the web browser. Pre-configured components such as the search box, text fields and columns can be selected with a click and visually adjusted. Additional information such as the topic, key words, author or date can be effortlessly added to further increase the comfort and convenience for the website visitor. All components can be combined with each other and the display of search results customized according to your specific needs. This allows individual search applications for any website to be created with just a few clicks and without the need for any programming knowledge. Integration takes place via an automatically generated embed code – just as easily as a YouTube video.

"Companies offer a wide range of product features. We only select those who show a sustained ability to solve the challenges of the search market. Mindbreeze continues to demonstrate the velocity of innovation and the agility to serve its customers in all its products." says Hugh McKellar, KMWorld Editor-in-Chief.
